2. Complaints of irregularities regarding candidates, referendum campaigners or election officials may be submitted to the Chief Returning Officer or her designate, provided that the complaint is submitted in writing no more than seventy-two (72) hours after the occurrence or the discovery of the occurrence to which it relates. This provision notwithstanding, the Chief Returning Officer may consider a protest or complaint submitted more than seventy-two (72) hours after the occurrence to which it relates if, in the opinion of the Chief Returning Officer or her designate, it would be reasonable to do so under the circumstances (for instance, if there has been a delay in discovering an alleged irregularity), but no protest or complaint shall be submitted more than seventy-two (72) hours after the end of balloting.

The complainant must also provide the Chief Returning Officer or her designate with copies of all supporting documents that the complainant wishes to have considered.

4. With regard to complaints against election staff, the onus of proof is upon the complainant to demonstrate that the election staff erred in some material way. The failure of the Chief Returning Officer or any election worker to strictly abide by any given rule shall not be sufficient, in and of itself, to establish the merits of complaint: a material effect in the result of the election must be established.
5. Upon receipt of a written complaint, the Chief Returning Officer or her designate shall provide copy of that complaint including the identity of the complainant to all respondents and to any other interested parties referenced in the complaint, all of whom shall have, at their discretion, the opportunity to respond in writing in regards to the complaint(s) in question.

2. On receiving the appellant's application, the Chief Returning Officer shall decide whether it meets the requirements of paragraph 1 above. If it does not, the Chief Returning Officer shall dismiss the application, and notify the appellant in writing. If it does, the Chief Returning Officer shall proceed with the appeal.
3. The Chief Returning Officer shall consider the merits of the appeal, but shall undertake whatever process for considering the appeal that she sees fit, provided that she maintains the principle that the onus of proof is upon the appellant to prove that the Chief Returning Officer or her designate erred in some material way in the original decision. The failure of the Chief Returning Officer, her designate or any other elections staff to abide by any given rule shall not be sufficient, in and of itself, to establish the merits of an appeal: a material effect in the result of the election must be proved.
4. The Chief Returning Officer shall:

For this reason, the Society's membership register may only be inspected by a member of the Society in accordance with section 25 of the Societies Act.

Article 2: Disposal of Records
